ANGEL ANSWERS...

Brotherly love

Q Do the angels have any guidance for me regarding my brother? Should I take a step back as I can't seem to help him anymore and all he sees are his own problems and his own life. It is causing a lot of upset and I have so much going on now, I need to focus on me.
Marie, UK

A Your brother is at a particular point on his path right now where it is time for him to live his own life, learn his own lessons, and even make the mistakes that are necessary for his overall growth and development. It isn't your job to interfere, try to fix, or even help him anymore. You have been a pillar of strength and support for him, whether he realises that now or not, however it is time to let him go setting you both free. Your energy is so intertwined with his that it is causing unrest, stress, lack of sleep and even turmoil. You are carrying around so much of his energy that you aren't able to move forward in your own life. The angels say that you are actually blocking each other's life path.

Free yourself from this burden and know that, by doing so, you give your brother the opportunity to fly as well. Trust that as you re-focus your attention back on your own life, you will begin to feel more liberated, whole and motivated to start a new chapter of personal success and happiness. You have many people to help in this world and this situation is a great lesson in boundaries that will serve you from this point forward.

Can I be a teacher?

Q I have been getting my tool box ready for the last five years (ACP, Reiki, Atlantean Healing, yoga teaching...), but when I knew I was done with training and needed to step up as a teacher, I started having doubts about wanting to do this full time.

My question to the angels is this: Is my life purpose to step up as a spiritual teacher? Or is this tool box only for my personal growth and should get a job and do my part while blending in the mainstream?
Mouna from London

A Your angels show me a bright, beautiful green road ahead of you. They say it's the healing pathway that you've built for yourself symbolising your work as a healer, and a counselor. The angels surround you, guiding you forward but they show me that you are digging your heels into the ground because of fear, and this is halting you from moving forward.

They cannot walk down this road for you! You must take the first steps. And it is also up to you to step into your power in this new role and even call yourself a 'spiritual teacher.' It is something you must own, accept, choose and claim in order to attract business.

You have so much training, experience and practice, and yet your ego is using doubt and insecurity as a tactic to delay you from embracing this new phase of your life. Needing another class or certification is just another excuse to keep you stuck. If we all waited until we felt ready or completely healed, we would never begin.

The angels say the time is now, so give yourself permission to say yes to your true greatness, to allowing yourself to shine, and begin to take baby steps forward in your new and radiant career.

Why aren't we all enlightened?

Q I've worked so hard on my journey to enlighten so I can help enlighten others. I just want to know why does it have to be so hard? Why can't growing spiritually be easy? Then this world would be at peace.
Josephine, London

A Most people will eventually ask this question at some point in their lives. However it is important to remember that we are all spiritual beings merely having a 'human experience'. And that experience is one of duality. This physical world is actually the quickest way for our soul to evolve.

The angels say that before we incarnate, we anxiously wait in line to enter into a body to learn, heal and experience what can only be experienced in the vehicle of a body temple. The problem is that, upon arriving here, we forget who we are, forget our life mission, become a traveler of the world around us and then want to leave. And as long as we experience our lives only through our five human senses, we are limited to only seeing a small fraction of the picture.

There is always a blessing and lesson to be learned through everything we encounter in our lives, whether we see it or not. Our soul is here to experience richly and fully everything; the totality of all emotions, lessons and experiences... the love as well as the pain, the joy as well as the sorrow. It is only as human beings that we label each experience as good or bad, right or wrong. We move through hardship, suffering, judgment and anger so that we may achieve forgiveness and eventually gain self-mastery.

Am I a medium?

Q I want to know how best to develop mediumship. Do I just let it be for whoever to come through when I am doing my readings, do I take a class like you and Charles or do I purchase Doreen's DVDs? How do I hone in on this or am I even meant to do mediumship?
Peggee, UK

A Mediumship - communicating with those who are deceased - is very natural and comes easily to people who have experienced it since childhood. For others, it is a skill that can be developed over time. We are all capable of expanding our intuitive abilities, including mediumship, through meditation, quieting the mind and practice. If we want to further develop ourselves as a medium, how we proceed is a personal choice depending on our confidence and level of accuracy.

I'm a firm believer in taking mediumship classes to learn new ways of receiving information and for being in the energy of the work, especially if it is new to you. Furthermore, a class setting provides the practice of actually doing the work with a partner - something a DVD cannot offer.

Since you're inquiring about this aspect of communication, then there is a part of you not only called to do this work, but able to, whether it's a part of your ongoing readings, or it becomes your specialty somewhere down the line. Spend quiet time alone connecting with your angels to see where your heart is. This will lead you to the perfect teacher, as well as give you the meditative space to cultivate this beautiful gift.

Healing for cats

Q I call in Archangels Raphael and Jophiel when I need to administer medicine to my 16+ year old cat, Mista. I call on them and ask that they comfort the cat and let me know that this is done with ease and grace. Is this a good way to communicate my desire to the angels and are they the right angels for this?
Patty

A Raphael and Jophiel are wonderful to call on for healing and comforting our animal companions. Archangel Ariel is another angel who is known to work with animals and the environment. And although we can call on any angel or being of light for anything, my favorite person to work with regarding animals is St Francis of Assisi. He communicated with animals, told them stories, blessed them and he connected with them heart to heart, feeling at one with them; something that we all need to learn in this world so that abuse of our beloved creatures comes to an end. Ask St Francis and other angels of your choice to be with Mista and communicate to her on your behalf. Explain everything to her; why she is on medication, your intentions and love, even what's going on in your life, as animals like to be included in all.
